Why we're offering $28k (the reason, in plain words)

Fixed up, the house is worth about $210,000. But it's gutted to the studs and needs roughly $105,000 of work (all new electrical, plumbing, HVAC, walls, kitchen, baths, finishes). After that work a builder will only pay about $42,000 for it. For us to do the deal and make a small fee, we have to buy it in the $28k–$32k range. It's not a lowball — it's just what a full gut allows.

Call flow — what to say

1. Open (you're returning his call):

"Hi Jason, this is [your name] with Paragon Government Solutions, returning your call about 5001 Beaucaire. Thanks for getting back to me. Is it still available?"

2. Confirm condition & feel out the seller:

- "Just so I'm clear — it's still gutted to the studs, right? Anything been done since?"
- "How long's it been listed, and are there other offers?"
- "Is the seller flexible on price for a fast, all-cash close? What's the lowest they'd really take?"

3. Make the offer (say the terms out loud):

"Here's what we can do: $28,000 cash, as-is. We put $1,000 earnest with the title company in 3 days, we take a 10-day inspection period, and we close in about 3 weeks — or whenever the seller wants. No bank, no appraisal, no contingencies. We have proof of funds ready. It's a full gut and we carry all that risk, so that's where our number lands. If the seller wants a clean, guaranteed close, we're ready to sign."

4. Close the call — get the email:

"What's the best email to send the written terms to? I'll get them over to you today."

What will probably come up (and what to say)

- "Why so low?" → "It's gutted to the studs — over $100k of work before it's livable. After that, our cash has to leave a little room. If they can get to the low-$30s I'll take another look — that's our top."
- "Are you wholesaling / assigning it?" → "We buy in our company name and may bring in a partner to close. Either way it's a real cash purchase — $1,000 earnest and proof of funds up front."
- "Can you come walk it first?" → "We don't do walkthroughs — we buy off photos and the disclosures, then verify in our 10-day inspection. Send current interior photos and we're set."
- "Seller wants the full $80k." → "Totally fair — then we're probably not their buyer today. Please keep my number; if it sits and they get flexible, we can close fast in cash."
- "How fast can you really close?" → "About 3 weeks, or sooner if title's clean — and we'll move on the seller's timeline if they need more."
- "Send me proof of funds." → "Absolutely, I'll include it with the written terms today."

Do NOT

- Go above $32,000. If he counters higher, stop and call Charles.
- Promise to visit, tour, or walk the property.
- Send written terms before you have his email.
- Send a signed offer without Charles okaying it first.
