The only numbers you need

Start the offer at	$28,000 cash
Highest you can go	$32,000 cash — NEVER higher
Their list price	$80,000 (too high for us — your job is to bring them down)

If the agent won't get the seller into the low-$30s, it's a polite no and you move on. Anything above $32,000 — stop and check with Charles.

Step 1 — First message to the agent (text or email this)

Hi Jason, this is [your name] with Paragon Government Solutions. We're cash buyers and we're interested in 5001 Beaucaire St. We know it needs a full rehab, so we buy as-is and close fast with cash. Is the seller open to a cash offer, and is there any room on the price? Where can I email written terms? Thanks!

Step 2 — If he replies, ask these (keep it casual)

- How long has it been for sale? Any other offers right now?
- Is the seller flexible on price for a fast, all-cash close?
- What's the lowest they'd really take?
- Can you email me current photos and any disclosures?

Step 3 — Once he gives you an email, send the offer (say this)

Thanks Jason. Here's our offer: $28,000 cash, as-is. We put $1,000 earnest money with the title company within 3 days, we have a 10-day inspection period, and we close in about 3 weeks or whenever the seller wants. No bank, no appraisal, no commissions to worry about. It's a full gut job and we take all that risk, so that's where our number lands. If the seller wants a clean, guaranteed close, we're ready to go. I'll send the written terms right over.

Step 4 — If he pushes back (simple answers)

- "That's too low." → "I understand. The house is gutted to the studs, so after we put over $100,000 into it, that's the most our cash can do. If they can get to the low-$30s, I can take another look — but that's our ceiling."
- "Come see it / walk it first." → "We don't do in-person walkthroughs — we buy off photos and the disclosures, then double-check during our 10-day inspection. Just send current photos and we're good."
- "Seller wants full price ($80k)." → "Totally fair — then we're probably not their buyer right now. Please keep my number. If it doesn't sell and they get flexible, we can close fast in cash."

Never do these

- Never offer more than $32,000. Higher than that = stop and ask Charles.
- Never promise to visit, tour, or walk the property.
- Never send written terms before you have the agent's email.
- Always tell Charles before sending any signed offer.

Why the offer is what it is

The house is worth around $210,000 fixed up, but it's gutted to the studs and needs about $105,000 of work. After that work, a builder only pays about $42,000 for it — so to make our fee, we have to buy at $28,000–$32,000. That's not a lowball; it's just what the math allows on a full gut.
